The old house is said to be the only Colonial executive mansion in existence in this country. It was erected by William Shirley, the royal Governor, who planned the great Louisbourg expedition. After the Revolution the house was occupied by William Eustis, Governor of Massachusetts, and the first American ambassador to The Hague. The Massachusetts Historical Society has petitioned the Legislature to take steps to prevent the destruction of the mansion.

An old steamboat man, Pilot Larry Brennan, whom we do not know, of Superior, Wis., wants a pension for old river men. We agree with Larry, but he must include old river reporters, as they need it worse. In a postscript to the Waterways, Larry adds: "I hear that Vicksburg has gone wet and I wish I could get away to have one more with the boys." Larry has no doubt been a "bird" in his time, but a pension he will never get unless he goes to war.—Gallipolis Tribune.

Colonel Homer Smith stated the new excursion steamer bearing his name has cost the owners $108,000, complete. The Smith has a life saving equipment on board for 3,000 passengers, the finest equipment, it is said, ever placed on a western river steamer. The Homer Smith's first trip will be from Pomeroy to Huntington, on Sunday, April 11, with the Elks' excursion. A big business is in sight for the Smith this season.

With the falling river steamboat men fear that the low stage will interfere with business this summer. River men are looking for rain to bring a fair stage of the Ohio.

A DAILY LESSON IN HISTORY

One Hundred Years Ago Today.

1815—General Andrew Jackson was making the journey from New Orleans, the scene of his memorable victory over the British, to his old home in Tennessee. In every town and village through which he passed the people greeted him with enthusiastic demonstrations.

Seventy-five Years Ago Today.

1840—Raleigh, N. C., completed preparations for a big celebration in honor of the opening of the Raleigh and Gaston railroad. The line was 85 miles in length, extending from Raleigh to Gaston, where it connected with the Petersburg and Roanoke railroad.

Fifty Years Ago Today.

1865—General Lee's troops made a final and strenuous effort, by hard marching, to extricate themselves from the Federal net that was tightening about them. But at the close of the day they encountered General Sheridan at Appomattox Court House, between themselves and Lynchburg. A sharp contest ensued, in which many on both sides were killed or wounded.

SCHOOL SHOULD BE OPEN

During Prevalence of Epidemics, Bureau of Education Reports.

Washington.—Instead of city schools being closed during the prevalence of epidemics they should remain open and in session, according to the Federal Bureau of Education.

Under the authority of this bureau the following statement of Dr. F. G. Curtis, of Newton, Mass., is published: "If the schools are closed when there is an outbreak, the children are turned loose from supervision; they mingle freely with one another in the streets, on playgrounds and in each other's houses. They are having an extra vacation and enjoying themselves thoroughly, and are unwilling to admit that they feel ill, lest they be kept at home and prevented from having a good time. For this reason they will not say they feel ill until the disease is well advanced, and they may be active sources of infection for some time before it is discovered that they are ill."

"If the schools are kept open and the children continue in the classrooms as usual they are under strict observation and examined daily by the school physician, suspicious and infected cases being sent home for observation and treatment."

"In this way many children are sent home before they have had an opportunity to infect other, thus reducing the probability of spreading infection. Further than this, the attention of the parents is called to the fact that the child is feeling ill and he is brought under treatment earlier."

"It seems, therefore, that keeping the schools open offers the best chance of safety for the pupils, both collectively and individually."

STOMACH TROUBLE FOR FIVE YEARS

Majority of Friends Thought Mr.

Hughes Would Die, But

One Helped Him to Recovery.

Pomeroyton, Ky.—In interesting advices from this place, Mr. A. J. Hughes writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and would have sick headache so bad, at times, that I thought surely I would die. I tried different treatments, but they did not seem to do me any good."

I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep, and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Thedford's Black-Draught, and quit taking other medicines. I decided to take his advice, although I did not have any confidence in it.

I have now been taking Black-Draught for three months, and it has cured me—haven't had those awful sick headaches since I began using it.

I am so thankful for what Black-Draught has done for me."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It is composed of pure, vegetable herbs, contains no dangerous ingredients, and acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.
